The storehouses are bursting—under the hammer blows of the United States government.

Published pictures of the Prince of Wales do not frame him up as a conqueror or of the stuff conquerors are made of. But perhaps David's pictures fail to do him justice.

Of course, the United States will collect that $7,500 ransom money from Mister Carranza, and along with it full interest money. With the lives of the two American airmen safe, the work of collection can begin.

That main highway between Barre and Burlington is good but it needs something to hold it down. Such a pounding as the road received on Aug. 17 would remove a large section of the highway in short order.

The rapidly changing kaleidoscope of newspaper events in St. Johnsbury has brought Arthur F. Stone back again as editor of The Weekly Caledonian. If anyone knows his St. Johnsbury, it is Editor Stone.

Engineer Rolla Smith of the ill-fated engine 220 of the Central Vermont railroad performed all the duties he could perform to save the lives of the persons entrusted to his care on the southbound New England States Limited train, which collided with an automobile at Jonesville and was then "partially wrecked." He threw on the brakes when he saw the impending danger of a collision with the automobile and thereby prevented the passenger coaches from being dragged along the ties and down the embankment to the Winooki river. Only one passenger car went off the iron, and that only for a short distance, so quickly was the train stopped. But the engine bearing Engineer Smith rushed forward and then careened down the bank. The engineer had saved the lives of the passengers, but he sacrificed his own life by staying with his engine.

A CHANCE TO BOOST BARRE.
As already stated in our news columns, the sale of stock in the Peerless Knitting Mill Co. for a proposed new factory in Barre is progressing at a satisfactory rate. Nearly one-half of the desired amount has been taken by business men, who are investing their money for the financial returns that are likely to accrue, rather than from the standpoint of sentiment. They readily appreciate some of the attractive features of this proposition, and they wish to become partners in the business. Yet there is also another side to the effort which is being made to secure this new industry. It is the side which is represented by a desire to see Barre grow and prosper, to get diversified industries, to branch out in other lines than the granite industry, splendid as that is, and to continue to be wide-awake to opportunities. They feel that if Barre is to maintain its progress in industrial lines it will be necessary to secure new industries of the better class, such as the Peerless underwear business is. So underneath the dollars-and-cents side of the proposition to the individual purchaser of stock there is the spirit of boosting the community along good industrial lines. There will be distinct credit to the community to push this proposition through to success. In order to do that, the most general co-operation is necessary on the part of all. Everyone must subscribe to stock to the extent of their capacity. The time to do that subscribing is now.

Couldn't Be Done--So He Did It

Somebody said that it couldn't be done.
But he, with a chuckle, replied:
That "Maybe it couldn't," but he would be one
Who wouldn't say so 'til he tried.
So he buckled right in with a trace of a grin
On his face. If he worried, he hid it.
He started to sing as he tackled the thing
That couldn't be done—and he did it.

Somebody scoffed: "Oh, you'll never do that;
At least no one ever has done it."
But he took off his coat and he took off his hat,
And the first thing we knew he'd begun it:
With the lift of his chin, and a bit of a grin,
Without any doubting or quiddit,
He started to sing as he tackled the thing
That couldn't be done—and he did it.

There are thousands to tell you it cannot be done,
There are thousands to prophesy failure;
There are thousands to point out to you, one by one,
The dangers that wait to assail you.
But just buckle in with a bit of a grin,
Then take off your coat and go to it.
Just start in to sing as you tackle the thing
That "cannot be done"—and you'll do it.—Herbert Guest.

This little poem seems to emphasize qualities which exist in nearly every individual, but which in the majority of cases lie dormant. Why is it? Perhaps it may be from the fact that they have not the confidence which a bank account would inspire in them.

It is difficult to measure the reserve power of a savings account. It is the beginning in a small way of wonderful accomplishments, not from the intrinsic value of the money itself, but the self-reliance which it instills.

WILLIAMSTOWN

Misses Bernice and Dorothy Downs, who have been with their grandmother, Mrs. C. N. Morse, in Bakersfield, for five weeks, have returned home.

Ashton E. Holt, for several years connected with the sales department of the Deming Manufacturing company of Framingham, Mass., has returned to his duties, after a vacation of two weeks with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Holt.

Mrs. B. D. Northrup of Washington, Pa., and her daughter, Margaret, a student of music in New York City, left town yesterday, after a few days as the guests of Mrs. Myrtle H. Seaver.

Miss Nellie Tillotson returned yesterday from a three weeks' stay in New York City with her sister, Miss Grace Tillotson.

Her brother, Lieut. H. L. Tillotson, is in camp near that city.

J. Lindsay Winchester and Myrtle Hutchinson, former employees at the post-office, have helped out during busy times in the absence of Mrs. Belle H. Covell.

Will N. Salter, wife and daughter, former residents and now of Alburg, were in town yesterday and made calls on friends.

Mrs. M. D. Kelley and two daughters of Montpelier are guests of W. W. Carey of route No. 1.

A very pleasant affair was the social held by the Eastern Star at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl W. Seaver on the evening of the 17th. Music was furnished by the band in place of the usual concert at the village and a large number were present to listen to it and to enjoy the social hour together.

The celebration of Old Home week on Thursday and Friday, Aug. 21 and 22, is largely in honor of the returned soldiers and sailors from this and adjoining towns. An arch is being erected over the street and an honor roll prepared bearing the names of all who went from this town so far as known. All soldiers and sailors are invited to march in the parade on Thursday morning, wearing their uniform. The parade is to be at 10 o'clock and at noon a dinner will be served in grange hall, which will be free to all soldiers and sailors in uniform. This holds true of all entertainments during the two days and all is free to those who were in the service, from this and other towns, who come in uniform. You are cordially invited to be present and participate in all the events of the celebration.

In the "notes" published by the Orange County Farm Bureau association, the dates of the Northfield fair is by some mistake given as the same as the state fair at White River Junction. The fair at Northfield is to be one week later than the state fair.

Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Hoyt have lately returned from a trip to Massachusetts, and Mr. Hoyt found the last block business in flourishing condition. If plans now made do not fail, the cutting will be done here in town within a few weeks.

All those who wish to be sure of seats for the entertainment Thursday evening may procure reserved seat tickets at the drugstore.

All those having messages from former residents to be read Thursday evening, please leave them with Mr. Irons.

Is Barre Your Town, or Do You Just Live Here?

Going Somewhere--- And Getting There

The Peerless Knitting Mill, with a modernly appointed NEW factory building, catering with its high class production to such merchants as John Wanamaker, Marshall Field and Jordan, Marsh Co., and affording congenial and remunerative employment for 200 hands, mostly women, will become a living reality in Barre's New Industrial Age IF YOU WILL DO YOUR PART!!

The Appeal Direct

This is YOUR opportunity because it is Barre's opportunity. The high cost of living has imposed new responsibilities upon breadwinners, and in the absence of facilities for employing the grown members of their families they must leave town and seek ELSEWHERE the opportunities that are now withheld. Keep the girls at home—keep the workingman in Barre, where his productive power is badly needed in the ever growing granite industry.

The Peerless Knitting Mill

offers a safe and sane, non-taxable investment, with a guaranteed return of seven per cent. Present plans provide for expansion in order to meet a future growth that is already assured. Big and little investors must rally at once! Shares are selling at $100 on easy payments. If the necessary amount is subscribed, ground for the factory will be broken at once—and the building will be erected this fall.

Not a Gift, But a Sterling Investment

In the $100,000 already subscribed, some of Barre's most conservative investors are heavily represented. In the same way YOUR savings will yield a splendid return. YOUR subscription is NECESSARY. Get into the boat and pull a strong oar.—And don't delay!

(Additional details of the project may be secured from members of the Board of Trade Committee, or by reading the newspapers.)

SHALL BARRE GRASP THIS GOLDEN INDUSTRIAL OPPORTUNITY? IT'S UP TO YOU!! Is this your town, or do you just live here?
